temperature is going to remain low for several days at a time.

The cold frames we use are 3' by 6'. Four frames will make a bed 12' long and approximately 6' wide. Such a bin will hold 35 or 40 plants, or more if they are in gallons. We cut the tops back enough so they will not stick up against the glass. If the plants are cut back about two weeks before going into storage they will set new leaves and shoots and store even better than when cut back at the time of storage."
